ABOUT THIS PROGRAMME

Significant leaps have been achieved across industries with the advent of the Fourth Industrial Revolution (4IR). Digital transformation has posed tremendous scope and opportunity for the optimisation of supply chains and the management of such.

This course will develop an understanding of how key relationships in supply chains can help you cut costs, boost performance, and create more value for customers. We will focus on the management of both domestic and international supply chains, what risks arise within supply chain management and how to mitigate against such risks. The course will then explore how digital transformation of supply chain management should be included as part of a company's overall strategy.

- Explain the core elements that make up the supply chain
- Understand what needs to be considered with an international supply chain
- Identify what value can be unlocked through a well managed supply chain
- Identify the key supply chain risks and how to mitigate against such risks
- Understand how digital transformation of supply chain management can be incorporated into a company's strategy
